Re: Contaminated, Unsafe Drinking Water at Saguaro Correctional Center

Dear Director Johnson and Warden Wead:

The ACLU of Hawai'i Foundation ("ACLU of Hawai'i") has received multiple credible reports of contaminated, unsafe drinking water at Saguaro Correctional Center ("Saguaro"), which is operated by CoreCivic and which currently incarcerates nearly 1,000 individuals who are in the custody of the Hawai'i Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation ("DCR"). Compounding this problem is that individuals wanting safe, drinkable water have no choice but to buy bottled water from the commissary at exorbitantly high prices. Together, these conditions are causing immense harm to individuals incarcerated at Saguaro, who are forced to minimize their consumption and use of water, or else experience extreme symptoms from such consumption and use, including burning eyes, cracked and bleeding skin, gastrointestinal issues, and other physiological distress.

Because both DCR and CoreCivic are responsible for ensuring the safety and wellbeing of individuals in your custody, the ACLU of Hawai'i writes now to ask that you commit to taking the following actions: (1) investigate the water problem, including by engaging an independent water quality expert to test the water sources at Saguaro; (2) immediately implement stopgap measures, including providing bottled water (as Saguaro already does for its staff) and Brita pitchers and filters (which are already on the facility's allowable property list) free of charge to incarcerated individuals; and (3) explain why the price of bottled water at commissary is nearly three times what it would cost outside Saguaro.

Our Investigation Reveals Serious Problems With Saguaro's Water

Over the past several months, we have been conducting an investigation into water quality issues at Saguaro. To that end, we have spoken with multiple individuals currently incarcerated there, each of whom has shared their experiences with Saguaro's water problem. Our investigation has revealed the following themes:

First, the water at Saguaro is foul and likely contaminated. The water tastes toxic and foul. One individual shared that it has a "chlorinated" "sulfurous taste," as if there was a "chemical cleaning" agent in it. Another shared that the water tastes "heavily chlorinated" and has a "greasy, viscous" feel—one that leaves an "awful aftertaste" in the back of the throat. As for the water's smell, the phrases used to describe it include "chlorine," "chemicals," "metallic rust," "bug spray," and "heavy metal." The water is also "caustic." For example, when individuals walk by the running shower water, they experience a burning sensation in their eyes. And exposure to the water causes itchy, dry, cracked, and bleeding skin—a phenomenon one person described as "alligator skin."

Second, incarcerated individuals are experiencing significant harms from the unsafe water. In addition to the symptoms just listed, individuals shared that the water causes a spectrum of other harms, including headaches, eye problems, hair loss, psoriasis, stomach aches, kidney stones, and diarrhea. Because the water is so toxic, many individuals avoid drinking the tap water altogether, which leads to dehydration, particularly in the summer months when daily average temperatures soar over 100 degrees Fahrenheit. Similarly, the water worsens personal hygiene by reducing incarcerated individuals' ability or willingness to shower or wash hands.

Third, while these conditions impact all individuals, they especially impact elderly individuals and those with serious medical needs and other health conditions.¹ One person with diabetes shared how he needs to stay well-hydrated but has trouble doing so because of the "horrible" water. Another person with a chronic kidney condition shared that he could not drink the tap water, because he knew it would harm his health. Finally, an elderly individual shared how the water exacerbated his gallbladder issues.

Fourth, because of the harm caused by the water, individuals are forced to take extreme measures. All the individuals we talked to try to avoid drinking the tap water if at all possible. As an alternative, some individuals gather ice cubes from the ice machine (which has a water filter) and then melt that ice to obtain clean water. The only other option incarcerated individuals have is to buy exorbitantly-priced bottled water from the commissary. But as described further below, that is not a sustainable solution. Inevitably, many individuals have no choice but to drink and bathe in the tap water. As one elderly individual with serious medical issues described his predicament to us: “I figure the bad water is better than no water.”

Fifth, CoreCivic already knows the water is unsafe to drink, so it provides prison staff separate sources of clean, safe water. Multiple individuals confirmed that CoreCivic provides bottled water for all prison staff—and only staff. Specifically, staff have access to 5-gallon water dispensers located exclusively in the staff areas of the facility, including unit offices and the main office. Leadership has repeatedly instructed staff about the existence and availability of water coolers throughout the staff areas of the facility. This shows that CoreCivic is well aware of the problems with Saguaro’s water and has taken steps to mitigate these problems for their staff—but not for the incarcerated individuals in their custody.

Sixth, bottled water is the only safe source of water, but CoreCivic limits how much individuals can buy, and it is exorbitantly expensive. CoreCivic does give individuals the ability to buy bottled water from commissary. But CoreCivic limits the amount of water that individuals can buy to 24 half-liter bottles—or 12 liters—per week.² That does not even cover half of the recommended weekly fluid intake recommendation of 25.9 liters for men according to medical experts, let alone those who need more water to help address other underlying health conditions.³ Unsurprisingly, incarcerated individuals run out of water. One individual with serious health conditions said, “I usually run out after 4 days, as I drink 4 to 6 bottles a day to remain hydrated.”

² See Exhibit A (Saguaro Commissary Item List for Hawai‘i Department of Public Safety as of May 3, 2024 listing “24” as the “LIMIT” for “WATER 16.9 OZ BTL”).

³ Mayo Clinic Staff, Water: How much should you drink every day?, Mayo Clinic (Oct. 12, 2022), <https://www.mayoclinic.org/healthy-lifestyle/nutrition-and-healthy-eating/in-depth/water/art-20044256>.

To make matters worse, the price of bottled water has skyrocketed recently from $9.60 to nearly $15 per 24-pack.⁴ This is almost triple what the same water product costs outside of prison.⁵ This exorbitant pricing is immensely burdensome given how prison wages work. Individuals incarcerated at Saguaro are currently paid 25 cents per hour of labor. Even assuming an individual worked a full 40 hours per week, he would make a mere $10, which is not even enough to buy a single case of water (let alone other essential items). Viewed differently, an individual who has the means to buy a case of water every week at current prices would spend over $750—or 3,000 hours’ worth of labor—annually just to have one case of clean drinking water per week.

Seventh, CoreCivic does not sell or make available Brita pitchers and filters, even though they are permitted items. Per Saguaro’s “Allowable Personal Property List,” CoreCivic allows each individual 1 “Brita Pitcher” and 3 “Brita Filters.”⁶ Some individuals have pitchers that were grandfathered in. Inexplicably, CoreCivic does not currently sell, make available, or allow the mailing of Brita pitchers and filters to incarcerated individuals. Some individuals have made requests with Saguaro staff and Warden Wead about using Brita filters, but those requests were ignored or denied.

Hawai‘i Residents Incarcerated at Saguaro May Have Legal Claims

Taken together, our investigation raises serious concerns that DCR and CoreCivic have not done enough to ensure Hawai‘i individuals incarcerated at Saguaro have access to clean drinking water, and thus have safe conditions of confinement.

As a general matter, humans need water to survive, and hydrating properly is key to good health. Contaminated drinking water “can have detrimental effects on human health, the environment, and biodiversity.”⁷ These conditions have created particular issues for Hawai‘i individuals at Saguaro who have medical issues and require a high volume of water every day to maintain basic wellbeing and manage illnesses so that they do not worsen.

⁴ See, e.g., Kevin Dayton, Price Have Abruptly Skyrocketed At The Arizona Prison That Houses Many Hawaii Inmates, Honolulu Civil Beat (June 12, 2024), <https://www.civilbeat.org/2024/06/prices-have-abruptly-skyrocketed-at-the-arizona-prison-that-houses-many-hawaii-inmates>. We understand that, currently, a case of water may cost $13.92. See Attachment A (Saguaro Commissary Item List as of May 3, 2024, listing the price for a single half-liter bottle of water as 58 cents). However, we also understand that, relatively recently, the price of bottled water was 61 cents, or $14.61 per case.

⁵ For example, at the Dollar General in Eloy that is 10 minutes from Saguaro, a 24-pack of half-liter bottled water from Clover Valley costs $4.65 plus tax, and the same from Aquafina costs $6.30 plus tax. See Attachment B (Screenshots of Water Products at Eloy Dollar General (Sept. 19, 2024)).

At the very least, Hawai‘i individuals at Saguaro are entitled to safe drinking water as a federal constitutional matter. Prisoners with disabilities are entitled to reasonable accommodations and to be free from discrimination. And there are other protections that may be implicated under other statutes.

First, Saguaro’s water practices may violate the Eighth Amendment’s prohibition on cruel and unusual punishment. The Eighth Amendment applies to conditions of confinement in prison and prohibits holding incarcerated individuals in unsafe conditions. See Helling v. McKinney, 509 U.S. 25, 29-33 (1993). The Ninth Circuit has made clear that individuals who are incarcerated are protected against being forced to drink “foul” or unreasonably dangerous water. See Keenan v. Hall, 83 F.3d 1083, 1091 (9th Cir. 1996) (“[W]ater that is foul would be inadequate to maintain health” and would therefore violate the Eighth Amendment). Prisoners are also protected from being forced to bathe in contaminated water. See J’Weial v. California Dep’t of Corr., No. 2:21-CV-00712 WBS DB, 2024 WL 643968, at *2 (E.D. Cal. Feb. 15, 2024) (holding that plaintiff stated Eighth Amendment claim based on being “forced to drink and bathe in” drinking water that, among other things, smelled like sewage and chemicals); Seymour v. Wasco State Prison Admin., No. 121CV01485AWIEPGPC, 2021 WL 6117296, at *8 (E.D. Cal. Dec. 27, 2021) (finding that plaintiff “sufficiently alleges that he is forced to drink, bathe with, and eat with contaminated water, and that this contaminated water poses an excessive risk to his health and safety”). Critically, the U.S. Supreme Court has held that an inmate need not wait “for an attack of dysentery” in order to successfully challenge “demonstrably unsafe drinking water.” Helling, 509 U.S. at 33.

Second, Saguaro’s water practices may also violate disability discrimination laws. As you know, incarcerated people are more likely to have disabilities and/or serious medical conditions. Through deliberate indifference to the needs of disabled individuals, for whom inadequate hydration or exposure to unsafe chemicals may exacerbate preexisting conditions or symptoms, both Saguaro and DCR may be liable for discrimination under the Americans with Disabilities Act (“ADA”) and ⁷ Kaylin Guillory Makowsky, The Right to Clean Water: An Analysis of the Clean Water Act and the Safe Drinking Water Act and a Proposal for Water Regulation Reform 25 Loy. J. Pub. Int. L. 63, 65 (2024).

Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act. See Duvall v. County of Kitsap, 260 F.3d 1124, 1138 (9th Cir. 2001) (applying deliberate indifference standard for discrimination claims under Title II of the ADA and Section 504).

Finally, Saguaro’s practices raise serious questions about whether and how CoreCivic is complying with the federal Safe Drinking Water Act. CoreCivic represents that it maintains a “water treatment system built and managed by CoreCivic” that services its four prisons located in Eloy, Arizona, including Saguaro. See Fresh Water System in Arizona Supports Sustainability, CoreCivic (Aug. 31, 2023), <https://www.corecivic.com/news/fresh-water-system-in-arizona-supports-sustainability>. Because this system regularly serves “at least twenty-five individuals,” CoreCivic is a “public water system” bound to follow the EPA’s regulations under the Act. 42 U.S.C. § 300g; § 300(f)(4)(A).

Drinking Water is Vital for All, but Carries Special Meaning in Hawai‘i

While access to clean drinking water is critical everywhere, it has unique significance in Hawai‘i, given its geographical isolation, reliance on limited water sources, and cultural history.⁸ Recent crises in Hawai‘i have reaffirmed the importance of water quality and access. In November 2021, the U.S. military’s negligence caused the leakage of 20,000 gallons of jet fuel from its Red Hill Fuel Storage Facility into the surrounding aquifer.⁹ And in August 2023, the devastating wildfires in Lahaina—in addition to causing significant loss of life—contaminated the water supply for over a year.¹⁰ Water also holds specific meaning and sacredness, as “the source of all life in Hawai‘i,” to Native Hawaiians,¹¹ who constitute a disproportionate share of the incarcerated population at Saguaro.¹²

Please respond to this letter by 5 p.m. on November 15, 2024. We are open to discussing our asks with you. However, the individuals from Hawai'i who are incarcerated at Saguaro need safe conditions of confinement—including clean, safe drinking water—and they need it now.

We also trust that no individuals incarcerated at Saguaro will be subject to any form of retaliation for speaking with the ACLU of Hawai'i and helping bring this issue to your attention.

If you have any questions or comments regarding this letter, please contact me at 808-522-5905 or wkim@acluhawaii.org.
